President's Message - May 2008

by Dan Christovich, President

Greetings and thank you all for taking part in another great month of AGA Washington DC activities!

From all accounts, April was a great month that included a terrific luncheon with remarks by Mr. Dan Fletcher of the Department of Interior, the fantastic annual Virginia Wine Tasting Tour hosted by our member services committee, and our Mentoring Luncheon Panel featuring the Honorable Sam Mok put on by the Membership Committee.

Coming up in May is of course our annual Spring Conference featuring a great line-up of speakers and topics that I am sure you will find engaging. I very excited that we will also celebrate our Chapter Year with the annual Awards Dinner on Saturday May 31st at the Grand Hyatt Hotel. And hopefully by now you will have seen the launch of the new Chapter website.

So, what are your plans for the summer? In between baseball and soccer with the kids, family barbeques, and trips to the beach, how about a renewed focus on professional development? Now is the time to make a renewed pledge to get your CGFM pre-work done so that you can take the review course and exam at the PDC in Atlanta. Now is the time to talk about professional development with your co-workers and recruit them to AGA. Now is the time to take the extra step to become more involved in AGA DC and sign up for a committee for the 2008-2009 Program Year. As the famous commercial says - Just Do It! I would like to give a heartfelt thanks to all our Chapter Executive Committee members for their hard work this year. As you will soon learn, the Chapter again reached the Platinum level for the year.

I would also like to thank our 14 Corporate sponsors for their incredibly generous support throughout the year. Without them we would not be able to achieve the success that we have.

Please email me with any questions or comments that you may have. I can be reached at Daniel.J.Christovich@uscg.mil

Sincerely,

Dan Christovich

Note From the Editor

by Emily Asmus, Editor

First off, let me say thank you for all those who submitted articles - there is a lot of knowledge in this group, whose articles, I am fortunate enough to review and publish.

Our team took a lot of time to produce a high quality newsletter notifying AGA D.C. members of Chapter and National events, services, and the people supporting this professional organization. And, if you are not already a member, we encourage you to join AGA D.C. Chapter and enjoy the many benefits it offers, in particular the high quality luncheon series, learning opportunities, and conferences.

This year we decided to install a "Letters to the Editor" page in The Washington Connection, allowing members of the AGA D.C. Chapter to voice their opinions on any matters of concern to AGA D.C. Chapter. As a rule, we will only publish signed letters and reserve the right to crop submissions for the sake of space. Before submitting a letter/comment to the editor, please consider the following:

- Relate your issue to a recent chapter event or article
- Keep submissions short and concise
- State your main point at the beginning
- If applicable, please include the article title and author you are addressing
- Send articles to Emily.Asmus@gt.com with "Letter to the Editor" in the subject line

As a general rule, if you have something to say, say it! We also encourage you to submit your suggestions, comments, or questions about the AGA D.C. Newsletter. We have made some significant changes to the layout and would love to know what you think. After all, this is your newsletter, the strength of this page and general publication depends on your comments.

*"But words are things, and a small drop of ink,
Falling, like dew, upon a thought produces
That which makes thousands,
Perhaps millions think."*

Want to Make a Difference?

Consider a Career in Government Financial Management

Are you, or someone from your chapter planning to attend a career fair, or an event for college students? AGA now has an eye-catching brochure that offers information about government financial management careers and answers questions for aspiring government financial managers regarding the qualifications and skills needed to get started. It also includes a bookmark for students that directs them to the Tomorrow's Professionals website for more information. To order free copies of the brochure, please submit the collateral order form found in the Members Only section or contact Jessica Jones.

Who is Jeff Green?

Name: Jeff Green

AGA Position: Chairman, AGA DC Awards Committee

Company: Kearney & Company

Title: Systems Accountant

Background: I am a Senior Partner with Kearney & Company

(Kearney). I have been with Kearney since 1989 and am responsible for our CFO Assistance Business Unit which includes CFO Act audits, performance audits, A-123 assistance, Federal financial statement support and audit liaison services. In addition to my client work, I have also co-authored three books on Federal financial management, published by John Wiley & Sons, Inc., including Federal Government Auditing: Laws, Standards, Regulations, Practices, and Sarbanes-Oxley; OMB Circular A-123 and Sarbanes-Oxley: Management's Responsibility for Internal Control in Federal Agencies, and Federal Accounting Handbook, 2nd Edition with other Kearney partners.

How long have you been a member of AGA: I have been a member of AGA since March 1, 2001. I have always taken an active interest in the activities and events hosted by AGA in order to take advantage of potential opportunities and to get the most out of my membership.

How has AGA helped you with your career: The AGA has helped my career in a wide variety of ways. First, the AGA provides excellent forums for discussing the challenges and emerging issues we are facing in government accountability. Second, it provides excellent opportunities to obtain Yellow Book compliant CPE. Lastly, it provides excellent networking venues providing opportunities to meet with clients and peers in less formal settings that promote open discussions of ideas and issues.

What advice do you have for someone thinking of joining the AGA? My best advice for someone thinking of joining AGA is to join and then get involved. Like most organizations, the more you put into AGA the more you will get out of it. The activities AGA sponsors at both the National and local chapter level offer something for everyone. One of my favorite events is the DC Chapter's annual Oktoberfest.

What is the best thing about working in government service? Having spent my entire career on the private sector side, I have found that the best thing about working with the Federal government is the opportunity to be part of "the solution." Before serving the Federal government exclusively, I worked in the commercial world, and so much of my time was spent on pure compliance. There was no long-term benefit in most of the work. On the government side, even when performing an audit, you have the opportunity to provide value, be an agent of change, and improve efficiencies that can have a long-term impact and cost savings to clients.

What has been the biggest obstacle in getting where you are today? The biggest obstacle I have faced has been the struggle to obtain recognition as part of a small business. It seemed at times that opportunities were reserved for the instantly recognizable named companies, or those with special status. I am very appreciative of the programs of the AGA that provided me vehicles to overcome this challenge.

What is your favorite hobby or outside activity? I enjoy playing golf and supporting my Orioles and Ravens.

What is your favorite flavor of ice Cream? Chocolate.

Anything else that you would like to highlight? We are working in a very challenging yet exciting time in government service. We are facing many challenges but also have the opportunity for lasting improvements. It will be a great feeling to sit back in my retirement years and say I was part of the government accountability profession during the first time the Federal government obtained an unqualified audit opinion. I look forward to working with my friends and colleagues in the upcoming years in order to jointly achieve our goals.

Luncheon Speaker: Kshemendra Paul

As of October 1, 2007, leading the Federal Enterprise Architecture (FEW) Program Management Office (PMO) is Chief Enterprise Architect, Kshemendra Paul. Kshemendra served as Chief Enterprise Architect for the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) and was also DOJ's Program Manager for the National Information Exchange Model (NIEM). In this role he led efforts around data standards and inter-operability across Federal, State and Local stakeholders, resulting in adoption of NIEM as the basis for terrorism information sharing. Kshemendra also served as the co-Chair of the Services Subcommittee of the Architecture and Infrastructure Committee, where he was part of the team leading the development of the Practical Guide to Federal Service Oriented Architecture

Kshemendra was honored in 2006 with the Federal Computer Week IT Award celebrating the top executives from government, industry and academia having the greatest impact on the government information systems community.

Mr. Paul has over 23 years of experience in strategic planning, enterprise architecture, organizational management and systems development. Before joining the civil service in 2005, Mr. Paul was an active entrepreneur, co-founding LocalEyes (sold to AOL) and founding Andelina (sold to FoundryOne). He has participated as a member of senior management for a variety of other technology product and service companies. He holds both Bachelor's and Master's Degrees in Electrical Engineering, and an additional Bachelor's degree in Mathematics, from the University of Maryland, College Park.

FASAB RECRUITMENT NOTICE

The Federal Accounting Standards Advisory Board (FASAB) is seeking a qualified individual to join its professional staff as an Assistant Director. The position is a Band III (salary range: 110,952.00 - 149,000.00 USD per year) within a banded performance-based compensation system. FASAB receives administrative support from the US Government Accountability Office (GAO). Therefore, all recruitment activities are managed through GAO's website and compensation is determined under GAO's performance-based compensation system. To apply for the position, visit <http://www.usajobs.gov/>

The announcement number is GAO-08-FASAB-0510-01.

Each assistant director assumes responsibility for a major technical project under consideration by FASAB. This requires research on concepts and standards adopted in the federal sector and by other standards setters; oral presentations before the Board and responses to member queries; and strong writing skills. In addition, assistant directors often consult with fellow staff members on other major projects, work with the community on implementation guidance for existing standards, and make presentations at conferences.

Detailed information about FASAB is available at www.fasab.gov. To see a sample of staff work, click on "Meetings" on the left and you will have access to briefing material from our most recent meeting.

Detailed instructions are included in the vacancy announcement. Please follow the instructions carefully to ensure your application receives our full consideration. For questions about this job or the application process, please contact:

Allison Y. Powell
Phone: 202-512-5502

AGA D.C.'s Mentor Program: Now Open to All!

by The Membership Team—LeAnn Corcoran and Marguerite Nealon, Membership Co-Directors, and Ruth Apelt, Assistant Membership Director

Last spring the Membership Team of the AGA D.C. Chapter initiated a Mentor Program, pairing retirees with Early Career members, (chapter members with five or less years of government financial management experience.) Due to the enormous interest we received, we are broadening the program to include every member who would like a mentor, regardless of their career stage. We now have an even larger pool of mentors-five people with Federal government and private sector experience. Would you like a mentor...or to be a mentor? If so, read on.

About the Program

The Program serves to facilitate member's professional development and enhance government accountability skills. Mentees receive one-on-one coaching from one or more mentors. Experienced professionals and retirees contribute to the professional development of our members. Before selecting their mentor, mentees have the opportunity to meet the mentors and review their résumés. The Membership Team is the conduit for exchanging information and getting the relationship off and running. The program is voluntary and open only to Chapter members.

Program Benefits

For mentees, benefits of the program include opportunities to:

- Enhance core financial management competencies
- Learn how others have advanced their careers in government accountability
- Seek advice or guidance for a specific work challenge
- Discover how greater involvement in the AGA D.C. Chapter can develop or strengthen one's management and leadership skills
- Develop further networking avenues

For mentors, the benefits include opportunities to:

- Give back to the profession by sharing knowledge and wisdom
- Have a meaningful impact on an individual's career development
- Build deeper relationships with other Chapter members

Participation

To sign up for the Mentor Program, please contact Marguerite Nealon wnealon01@aol.com or LeAnn Corcoran lcocoran@savantage.net.

Now Accepting Hotel Reservations for PDC 2008

It's time to look ahead to the 2008 PDC in Atlanta! Next year's conference will take place July 27 - 30 at the Marriott Atlanta Marquis. Everyone attending the conference will be housed in this hotel; AGA's room block is now open. Be sure to mention that you are attending the AGA PDC when making your reservation.

Spreadsheet Tips

Introduction

My career has been linked with the spreadsheet. I started work with a public accounting firm in 1981, when a spreadsheet was a large piece of yellow or green paper that one wrote on in a pencil. A microcomputer had an 8-bit processor and was only used occasionally to facilitate an audit. I remember installing VisiCalc as our first spreadsheet program on our Commodore 8032 microcomputer, and being annoyed that it would only use 12 kilobytes of memory. From there I moved onto Lotus 123 and then Excel. Meanwhile, I learned a lot of spreadsheet tricks and traps.

Importing Data

The biggest problem with spreadsheets is how it interprets the data. If you import straight text (such as a report printout), you can usually tell the spreadsheet which fields should be dates, numbers and text, but many people let the program figure it out, and it is often wrong. Unless you plan on adding the values in a field or performing some other arithmetic on them, import them as text. You should still be able to sort it as text without any problems.

Fields such as accounting codes should always be text. If you have, say, a four-digit field that can begin with zeroes and you import it as a number, you will lose the leading zeroes. Fund Group is one example, where 0100 is a common Fund Group but it becomes 100. Importing it as text will leave it as 0100. However, if you inherit a spreadsheet someone else (or some process) set up, you can change the format to custom "0000" and get your leading zeroes back.

Accounting period is another troublesome field. We federal accountants know that 02/2008 was November, 2007, but I have yet to find a spreadsheet that knows that. If you import "02/2008" as date or let it default to a date, it will become February 1, 2008. What's worse is that accounting periods that don't correspond to dates (such as beginning balances in period 00 or closing entries in 14) will be left as text, so they won't sort properly with the other periods. This isn't a problem if you leave them all as text. Better yet, split the period into two columns, Fiscal Month and Fiscal Year, so you can leave them as numbers.

A problem I've only found in Excel is that it will force a field to be text even when you enter a formula. This only happens if you import text into a spreadsheet and declare a column to be text. If you enter a formula, it just displays the formula (e.g., "=SUM(A1:A4)") instead of the desired value. To get around this, edit the cell (push F2 or click on the formula bar at top), highlight the formula, cut (control-X or use the menu), then hit enter. The cell should now be blank. Go over to a column beyond what was imported (e.g., if 25 columns were imported, go to Column 26 or Z). Edit an empty cell, paste the formula, hit enter. You should now have the desired value. Cut the entire cell (do not edit it) and paste it on top of the cell you tried to enter the formula originally. You should now be able to paste it to other rows.

Sorting

When importing a text report, immediately add a new column called Sequence. The value of the first row is 1. The value of the second row is the first row + 1 (e.g., cell J3 has the formula =J2+1). Copy this formula down to the end, then copy and paste only the value so you now have 1, 2, 3, 4 and so on. Now save the spreadsheet. If you sort the data and decide you didn't do the right sort, you can easily get back to the original data sequence. I do this frequently to get rid of headers and total lines, and it is a lot easier to sort on the sequence field than to recreate the report's original sort.

If you import a report that has a header, create a new column to hold the header values. I recently did this with a directory listing. The header was "Directory of ", so cell H2 had the formula =IF(left(A2,12) = "Directory of", mid(A2,14,250), H1). This will populate H2 with the directory listed in A2 if it is a directory, and copy down the previous directory if it is not. Remember to replace the formulas with their values once you've verified the results. By moving the header fields to a row, you can now sort the data however you want and not lose the header information.

Inside the Black Box (Cont'd.)

Some spreadsheets have limits to the number of fields you can sort on. If you need to sort by columns A, B, C, D, and E but your spreadsheet will only allow you to sort on 3 columns, there are two workarounds. One is to first sort by A, D, E then sort by A, B, and C. Usually the spreadsheet will leave rows in the order they came in if the sort fields are the same. The second option is to concatenate the fields together in a spare column, then sort on that column. This only works if the data in the fields are all the same length. I've had to enter spaces into some fields or pad the entries with trailing spaces to force them to the same length.

Comparing Data

Sometimes you need to compare two report or spreadsheets and just find the differences. There are two basic ways of doing that. The easiest method is to list one report on the left (e.g., columns 1-4 or A-D), the other on the right (e.g., columns 6-9 or F-I), and in the center put a comparison statement. If you want to check that all 4 columns are the same, put in =IF(AND(A2=F2, B2=G2, C2=H2, D2=I2), 0, 1). Then copy the formula down (you may also need to sort each report separately to ensure they are in the same sequence). By entering numeric results you can highlight the comparison column and get a count of all the mismatches. If one report has data the other doesn't, you will have to insert cells or cut and paste the shorter report down so it lines up with the longer report. This can be quite time consuming if there are lots of data differences.

The other method is trickier, but you don't need to insert blank cells. Create a new column that stores a value indicating which report you got the data from. Put both reports in the same columns and then sort together. If all the data is the same, you should have two rows of the same data next to each other except for the source column, which should alternate on each row. To check if this is the case, add a comparison column (F) with a 1 in the first row and the formula =IF(F1=0, 1, IF(AND(A1=A2, B1=B2, C1=C2, D1=D2), 0, "Error")) in the second row, and copy the formula all the way down. You will see the value "Error" in all rows following the data that only exists in one version. If you have a lot of data, you can copy and replace the formulas with their data, then search for the word "Error" in that column.

Conclusion

Accounting is actually the oldest information processing language, so it is only natural that electronic computers have come to be indispensable in the accounting profession. The digitizing of the old accounting workhorse, the spreadsheet, has been a major time-saver for accountants. However, like all software, it has its peculiarities and one must know how to deal with those to get the most from the program.

*FREE* AGA Audio Conference: The Anatomy of Ethical Slips in Government

Event Description: Description: AGA, in conjunction with the National Association of State Auditors, Comptrollers and Treasurers (NASACT) and the Association of Local Government Auditors (ALGA), is pleased to announce a new and increasingly important topic to our audio conference schedule - cases of ethical lapses.

During this audio conference, the presenter will recount some recent ethical lapses in government and examine the causes and effects. By examining a series of ethical lapses, we find that a pattern emerges. That pattern allows us to think about this question: What is it in the culture of an agency that allows obvious ethical breaches to occur and continue? Once we understand the culture, we can think about putting the detection methods, as well as antidotes, in place.

In our outrage over misconduct, we often fail to look deeply enough to see the causes and fall short of taking meaningful steps that would go further than just correction. Thinking more deeply about nurturing a culture of ethics is the key to prevention of ethical lapses, at all levels.

To share her expertise in ethical behavior and its ramifications is Marianne M. Jennings, JD, Professor in the Department of Management in the W.P. Carey School of Business at Arizona State University (ASU). At ASU, Marianne teaches graduate courses in the MBA program in business ethics and the legal environment of business. Professor Jennings has authored hundreds of articles and has six textbooks and monographs in circulation. She has conducted more than 300 workshops and seminars in the areas of business, personal, government, legal, academic and professional ethics. Among her many awards and honors, Marianne was inducted into the AGA Speakers' Hall of Fame and also received a writers' award for best article in AGA's Journal of Government Financial Management.

Please join us for two hours of lively discussion about this important and timely topic. In addition to the speaker's commentary, there will be approximately 20 minutes for Q & A so that the participants can ask the speaker questions and share their own experiences.

Date and Time: This conference is scheduled on Wednesday, May 14, 2008 from 2:00 - 3:50 p.m. EST

CGFM

Take the CGFM Examinations Before the PDC

AGA is once again offering a great opportunity to take the CGFM Examinations and earn your CGFM before the 57th Annual Professional Development Conference (PDC) in Atlanta, GA. We are offering a two-day Intensive Review Course on Thursday, July 24, and Friday, July 25, 2008, and an opportunity to take the CGFM Examinations on July 26-27, 2008. The cost of the course is only $249 for qualified participants, and it offers 18 CPE hours. Special Bonus: The CGFM Examinations are offered at no cost to course attendees.

This Intensive Review Course will cover the updates to the CGFM Examinations, and this event will be the first opportunity to take the updated examinations. While the core of the examination content remained the same, the three examination content outlines were updated, refreshed and streamlined. This is your opportunity to get the most up-to-date information and earn your CGFM right at the PDC!

More information and a registration form for this event are available on the AGA website - http://www.agacgfm.org/pdc2008/cgfm\_exams.htm. 2 CPE Hours Available!

AGA, in conjunction with the National Association of State Auditors, Comptrollers and Treasurers (NASACT) and the Association of Local Government Auditors (ALGA), is pleased to announce a new and increasingly important topic to our audio conference schedule – cases of ethical lapses.

During this audio conference, the presenter will recount some recent ethical lapses in government and examine the causes and effects. By examining a series of ethical lapses, we find that a pattern emerges. That pattern allows us to think about this question: What is it in the culture of an agency that allows obvious ethical breaches to occur and continue? Once we understand the culture, we can think about putting the detection methods, as well as antidotes, in place.

In our outrage over misconduct, we often fail to look deeply enough to see the causes and fall short of taking meaningful steps that would go further than just correction. Thinking more deeply about nurturing a culture of ethics is the key to prevention of ethical lapses, at all levels.

To share her expertise in ethical behavior and its ramifications is Marianne M. Jennings, JD, Professor in the Department of Management in the W.P. Carey School of Business at Arizona State University (ASU). At ASU, Marianne teaches graduate courses in the MBA program in business ethics and the legal environment of business. Professor Jennings has authored hundreds of articles and has six textbooks and monographs in circulation. She has conducted more than 300 workshops and seminars in the areas of business, personal, government, legal, academic and professional ethics. Among her many awards and honors, Marianne was inducted into the AGA Speakers' Hall of Fame and also received a writers' award for best article in AGA's Journal of Government Financial Management.

Please join us for two hours of lively discussion about this important and timely topic. In addition to the speaker's commentary, there will be approximately 20 minutes for Q & A so that the participants can ask the speaker questions and share their own experiences.

Date:	Wednesday, May 14, 2008
Time:	2:00 - 3:50 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time
Learning Objectives:	To understand how ethical breaches are influenced by agency culture and what can be done to prevent such occurrences in the first place.

Inspector general notes moderate progress at FEMA

By Chris Strohm
CongressDaily
April 3, 2008

Although it has been more than two-and-a-half years since Hurricane Katrina exposed massive government problems in handling catastrophes, the Federal Emergency Management Agency has not made substantial progress in key emergency preparedness areas, the Homeland Security Department's inspector general says in a new report.

Instead, FEMA has made moderate to modest progress in eight of nine of the most important preparedness areas, according to the report, which was not released but was obtained by CongressDaily.

Homeland Security Inspector General Richard Skinner is scheduled to testify Thursday along with FEMA Director R. David Paulison at a Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee hearing to examine whether FEMA is better to prepared to handle a catastrophe than it was when hurricanes Katrina and Rita ravaged the Gulf Coast in 2005.

"FEMA officials said that budget shortfalls, reorganizations, inadequate information technology systems and confusing or limited authorities negatively affected their progress," the IG report asserts.

"We agree with FEMA," the report adds. "FEMA would also benefit from better knowledge management and plans for sustaining initiatives that are under way." According to the report, FEMA has made moderate progress in five areas: overall planning, coordination and support, interoperable communications, logistics and acquisition management.

The agency has made modest progress in three areas: handling evacuations, providing housing for displaced persons, and building a workforce to deal with disasters.

FEMA has the most need -- rated as making only limited progress -- in clearly defining mission assignments, the report concludes.

The report says that FEMA has made substantial progress only in providing law enforcement agencies access to its records and improving the ability of the Gulf Coast to evacuate.

But overall, none of the nine major areas was given the highest rating of making substantial progress.

The IG's office said it did not perform an in-depth assessment of each of the nine areas, but used its broad knowledge of the areas to gauge the agency's overall progress.

In a written response to the report, Paulison said the inspector general did not accurately reflect much of the work his agency has done over the last two years or how some responsibilities fall to other components of the department.

He also said the agency has a new strategic plan. Paulison said the IG's reporting methodology should be more comprehensive, writing that it was "unclear as to how the IG calculated and tabulated the ratings for the nine key areas."

Paulison disagreed with an IG recommendation that FEMA conduct a comprehensive needs assessment.

"FEMA has no shortage of recommendations of improvements the agency needs to make, and has had our capability gaps clearly spelled out," he wrote. "The sheer workload associated with responding to the administrative documentation requirements of over 700 recommendations from DHS, OIG and GAO is directly impacting our continued efforts to improve FEMA."

At Thursday's hearing, Paulison is also likely to explain to the committee that he does not intend to resign immediately.

News outlets in Florida began reporting Wednesday that he was going to resign based on comments he made to them at a hurricane conference. Paulison issued a statement hours after the news reports saying his comments were taken out of context.

"Let me be clear: I have no plans to leave at this time, and am committed to moving FEMA's mission forward," he said. "It is a fact that I serve President Bush, and therefore my service will end when we move into the next administration. However, I can assure you that this announcement is not imminent."
