

Jed Johnson currently serves as the Chief Audit Executive (City Auditor) of the City of Garland, Texas. He began his career in Garland as a Staff Auditor in 2006, advancing through the chain of commands to become the City Auditor in 2014. Prior to joining Garland, he was an Internal Auditor at the Dallas County. He is a Certified Internal Auditor (CIA) and a Certified Government Auditing Professional (CGAP).

Jed oversees the audit and fraud investigative functions at the City of Garland. He strongly believes in developing and maintaining a collaborative relationship with the Governing Body (City Council) and City Management. As the City Auditor, Jed played an instrumental role in changing the overall perception of the audit function and gaining trust within the organization. The effectiveness of Jed's audit approach is evident as his team feels welcome by the City management, and is able to witness great collaboration and audit outcomes throughout the City.
